Forward contract prices opened lower this morning. Higher packer bids failed to pan out yesterday as few packers are willing to buck the trend of tighter live hog supplies by maintaining their production schedule. This week's kill is shaping up to be smaller than 1.95 million hogs, significantly smaller than was anticipated. With wholesale pork prices continuing to make steady gains, the estimated operating margins of packers has grown to about $12.00/hog, near the average for this time of year. Nearby futures are experiencing the last day of the Goldman Roll, a period whereby the large index fund will sell June and buy July and August, which could be supportive to late summer forward contract prices. The Canadian Dollar is starting the day up close to half a cent against the U.S. Dollar as risk aversion related to the EU debt crisis subsides.

Canadian delivered soymeal prices opened steady this morning. Soybean futures opened steady this morning after yesterday's initial spike caused by spillover support of corn. Prices remain steady despite the USDA WASDE Report's forecast of the second largest soybean yield on record for 2010 at 3.31 billion bushels.

Canadian delivered corn prices opened lower this morning. Corn markets opened lower this morning after a sharp spike yesterday due to a purchase of corn by China. As a result of the sale, farmer selling increased capping initial gains, providing a buying opportunity.
